Cornwall Council and around the Peninsula-

Unfortunately I had to take a period of time off during February due to a family bereavement, so my report is likely to be shorted than normal this month. Thank you for all the kind messages my family and I have received, and for the support from the Parish Councils during this difficult time.

Council Tax

During February, there was a Full Council meeting that was to set the budget for the coming year, including the Council Tax amount to be paid by all residents. The Labour Group on Cornwall Council voted against this budget. Services are being cut and employees have been made redundant. Our offices, buildings, adventure centres, day centres are being sold off. Also being lost, or having to be taken on by town and parish councils, are leisure, swimming, culture, toilets, libraries and green spaces. Yet, this budget proposed to increase Council tax to the max possible. Our revenue spend is up £51.3 million, yet we still have to make £55 million in savings and we seem to get less for it every year. We know that our revenue support grant from central government has reduced by 88% since 2014 and our settlement funding assessment has reduced by 20% since 2017. The Full Council, however, agreed for council tax to increase to the maximum they are allowed to raise it. Council tax is an unfair tax on the people of Cornwall based on property values 30 years ago and produces less than it does in other, more affluent places. So, in Cornwall, where our average income is lower and we have an older population, we need more services, but the figures available to fund those services are less.

Deal for Cornwall

It's frustrating that Cornwall Council aren't releasing the full results of the public consultation on the County Deal, particularly the question on whether people think a mayor for Cornwall is a good idea. In fact they'll be releasing the consultants' report on the public consultation only, in the middle of March. It's hard to see how councillors can be expected to vote on whether we should have a Mayor, if we're not told what the people said! I will report next month on any updates with this.
